

Sara Ashour'S ALTCV

Welcome to my ALTCV where you will find out about so much about me: my traits, what I love the most and what I don't. This ALTCV includes many photos because I love taking photos and I think that they are alive and that they tell so much more than words do.

First Things First!

Family always comes first. It is the sweetest thing about life.

I took this photo in Salzburg on a family trip.

It is my desktop background.

I enjoy exercising and eating healthy for I know how valuable health is.

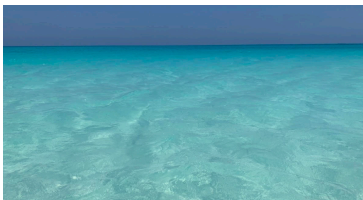

I played Tennis, Basketball, Ultimate Frisbee. Currently doing cross-fit. I love doing head-stands, riding bicycles and jogging.

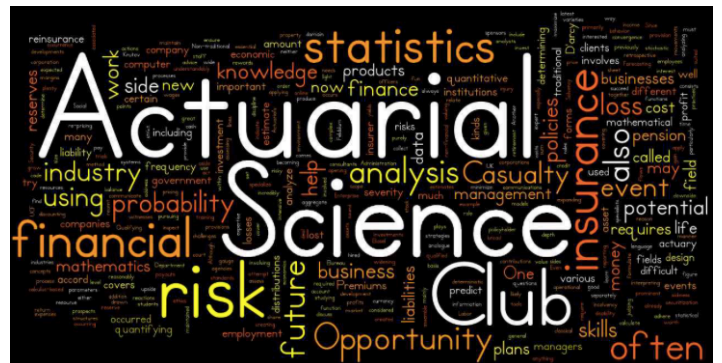

I am an Egyptian girl who embraces the blessings and misfortunes of her surroundings. I see no beauty in perfection but rather a perfect imperfection. I believe that there is strength in weakness. Humans must train themselves to see beauty in the simplest things.

I love to travel. I went to Germany, Austria, Greece, France, Saudi Arabia, Spain, Turkey and Switzerland. As much as I love exploring new places, I never get bored of visiting cities which I have been to so many times before.

Je suis Sacré-coeurienne. I am proud to be oriented by des soeurs who praise ethics and discipline.

I am studying Actuarial Science. Since I was in school I have always loved math. The logic behind it is the basis of all other sciences. It allows the mind to come up with different approaches to solve problems.

I am an introvert. That is the one thing that I don't like the most about me. I don't easily express myself. It is not easy for me to approach people, so bear with me. BUT, I am working on that and I must say that there are some remarkable improvements.

I am a good listener. I love to listen to people's talks specially to those whom I love. One thing that I absolutely hate listening to or talking about is politics. I want nothing to do with all of these mixed up truths and lies.

Meet Boozoo. He was 2 months old when he came to our house and now he is 9 years old. Whenever I am feeling down, he is my remedy. His hugs are so warm and filled with love. He is a loyal cat who stays by my side whenever I am sick. He is so disciplined: never touching one's food rather sit politely till he gets served. He is a blessing.

I like having long walks while listening to music. There are one kind of my Me-Time. Having Me-Time is very important for me to clear my mind.

I am addicted to chocolate and ice-cream.
